Need a Few Things to Do This Winter?

The temperatures are dipping below freezing, but The Flower Show season is heating up here in the Philadelphia area with plenty of orchid shows to keep orchid enthusiasts busy during February, March, and April. On February 8 - 11, the Deep Cut Orchid Society's 10th Annual Show takes place in Holmdel, NJ, and on February 17, the 27th Annual NCOS Paphiopedilum Forum will be held in Washington, D.C. The first week of March, of course, is The Philadelphia Flower Show, and there is still time to pre-register your plants for the show (see box below). We are looking forward to seeing your blooming orchids on the tables this year!

On the weekend of March 30 – April 1, our society will be participating in the Longwood Gardens Orchid Show and Sale, sponsored by the Southeastern Pennsylvania Orchid Society. Please join Pinelands' Show Committee this year and learn what it takes to plan and put on an orchid display. Our first meeting to plan our exhibit is Friday, January 26, at 7:00 p.m. Call one of our Officers for details about time and place.

On April 21, the South Jersey Orchid Society is sponsoring a bus trip to the Greater New York Orchid Society International Orchid Show at Rockefeller Center. Later on in April, the Delaware Valley Orchid Council Speakers' Forum will be held on Saturday, April 28th. The Speakers' Forum is a full day of great speakers, a fabulous lunch, and a roomful of the area's best orchid vendors. It's a great value at only $35 for the day.

There's Still Time to Pre-Register for The Philadelphia Flower Show

Your entries must be received at the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society by Wednesday, January 31 (not post-marked), so get them in the mail today! If you have never entered a plant in The Flower Show, or if you have never won a blue ribbon in the show, you must enter your orchids in the Novice Classes. Call one of our society's Officers to guide you through the pre-registration process. Forms are available online at TheFlowerShow.com.
